Universities' Positioning in the World

Context:

- Universities are located in complex relationships with private and public agencies (rankers, accreditation agencies, foundations, entrepreneurs etc.).
- They play an increasing role in 'soft' diplomacy,.
- International agencies and governments promote universities as drivers of knowledge economies and as crucial for creating prosperous futures for students and society.

Main research questions:

1. How to conceptualise and analyse the new mandate for universities and the 'space' in which universities are operating?
2. How are universities negotiating with and being reshaped by these diverse interests?

Projects:

- Universities in the Knowledge Economy (UNIKE) (EU Marie Curie project). Collaborative book project between 14 PhDs and Post Docs (Berghahn New York) on the implications of their research results for future universities Susan Wright, Rebecca Lund eds)
- Economy or ecology? Conceptualising the university' as operating in a knowledge economy or an interactive ecology. (Susan Wright)
- Promoting a Culture of Entrepreneurship (PACE): (Sarah Robinson and iCare, BSS/AU)
- Universities and soft diplomacy: Sino-Danish Partnerships (Jie Gao and Susan Wright)
- European Universities: Critical Futures CHEF is leading a consortium of 17 European Higher Education research centres (Susan Wright)

University Organization and Inner Life

Context:

- Extensive reforms to governance and management, research strategies and the very concept of education.
- Academics are faced with changing expectations about their work and identity, often embedded in new performance criteria and human resource management
- Students are figured in conflicting ways, as consumers, with quick throughput, engaged in deep learning, focused on employability, and active citizens.

Main research questions:

1. How are students, academics and leaders understanding these changes ?
1. How are their responses and initiatives changing the internal life of universities?

Projects:

- Gender and University Leadership (Susan Wright, Rebecca Lund, Tampere Univ., Kirsten Locke, Auckland Univ, Jill Blackmore, Deakin Univ.) .
- Practicing research integrity (Lise Degn, Laura Louise Sarauw, Jakob Williams Ørberg, Susan Wright, Rachel Douglas-Jones, IT Univ.)
- The Danish Study Progress Reform and the ideal student. (Laura Louise Sarauw)
- Collective academic supervision (Helle Merete Nordentoft, Kristina Mariager-Anderson, Pia Baggesen, Anne Smedegaard) .
- International Students Transitioning to a Post-PhD Career in Denmark. (Tijana Maksimovic)
- Doctoral experience of becoming (or not) an academic. (Søren Bengtsen et al. at Helsinki, Oxford, Karolinska.)
- Mobility in doctoral education (Lisbeth Walakira, Susan Wright, Corina Balaban, Manchester Univ., Pavel Zgaga, Ljubljana Univ., Brigitte Bonisch-Brednich Victoria Univ, NZ).)

Future Universities & Higher Education

Context:

- Faced with financial crises, climate change, disparities between rich and poor, global population movements, conflicts and threats to democracy, universities are called upon to renew the public purpose of education and research, their orientation towards society and their inner organization in order to play a central role in creating more equitable, democratic and peaceful futures.
- There are numerous historical and new experiments in creating alternative universities.
- IT offers opportunities for developing universities' education and for new ways of interacting with students and society.

Main research questions:

1. How can CHEF use results from the first two focal areas and ideas from a wide range of alternatives to debate, model and build future universities?
2. How can CHEF provide students, faculty, administrators, leaders and higher education policy makers with an internationally linked and reflexive space for exploring sustainable and liveable higher education futures?

Projects:

- Trust university (Susan Wright, Davydd Greenwood, Cornell University, and UNIKE's 25-member network on reforming public higher education in the US and Europe).
- Establishing a Cooperative University in UK (Participating in a working group led by Cooperative College UK)
- Go-IT: Global Online Inter-University Teaching. (Rikke Toft Nørgård and Gwyneth Hughes, IOE/UCL).
- Creating open-ended and playful universities. (Rikke Toft Nørgård and House of Game//Play with Andrew Burn, John Potter, Nicola Whitton, Alex Mosely)
- University Futures: New mandates, new formats. Working on a Marie Curie ETN application with Bristol U., KU Leuven, UofPorto and UofLjubljana. (Susan Wright and Jakob Williams Ørberg)

New Dialogues Between Academics and Policy Community

- Dialogue with policy makers (Seminar at Ministry; Panel debate at DPU) To address the current gap between critical higher education research and policy processes nationally and internationally.
- 'Rapid response' (coffee meetings) to engage academics and policy makers in discussion of emerging issues.
- Public dissemination
Active presence in Danish and international media
- Maintain an open door to CHEF's activities through its website, newsletters, a working paper series, and being active on social media platforms.
- Teaching and graduate research opportunities. CHEF will contribute to DPU/ARTS' master degree programmes, notably the MA in Anthropology, Education and Globalisation
- Develop new formats for structured graduate research opportunities and integrated research and teaching (e.g. online PhD 'master class' with Deakin; student placements with CHEF).
- Summer school. (funding permitting) to network researchers, international experts and stakeholders to explore how universities' new mandates are unfolding and create a critical and constructive dialogue with all concerned.
- The aim is to make this summer school a highly anticipated annual event on the international calendar.
